DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kobylinski (5,112,527). With respect to claim 1, Kobylinski teaches a lab-scale reactor unit capable of conducting high temperature catalytic reactions to produce hydrogen cyanide being sized and shaped for use in a laboratory setting, comprising: (a) a body of thermal insulating material (Figure 1, item 34 and col. 3, ll. 1-5), (b) a reaction chamber formed within said body of thermal insulating material (figure 1, item 12), (c) a pressure containment vessel disposed about said body of thermal insulating material (Figure 1, item 10), said pressure containment vessel having an inlet communicating with said reaction chamber, said pressure containment vessel having an outlet communicating with said reaction chamber (Figure 1, items 16 and outlet), and (d) a quench cooler operatively connected to said outlet of said pressure containment vessel (Figure 1, quench water); the reaction chamber is formed by at least one hollow body of a heat-resistant material embedded in said body of thermal insulating material (col. 8, ll. 30-35); the reaction chamber is formed as a void in said body of thermal insulating material (figure 1, item 34 and void).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 6-15 are allowed.

Response to Arguments

In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., that the pressure containment vessel contains flashbacks or detonations) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

Applicants argue that Kobylinski does not teach a "pressure containment vessel" as recited in claim 1. The examiner disagrees. During patent examination, the pending claims must be "given the broadest reasonable interpretation." Applicant always has the opportunity to amend the claims during prosecution, and broad interpretation by the examiner reduces the possibility that the claim, once issued, will be interpreted more broadly than is justified. In re Prater, 415 F.2d 1393, 1404-05, 162 USPQ 541, 550-51 (CCPA 1969). In applying the Prater test to the instant case, it is the examiner's position that the vessel of Kobylinski, while it may not contain flashbacks or detonations, is sufficient contain at least some amount of pressure. Therefore, by containing some pressure, even if it is a slight amount, Kobylinski meets the claim 1 "pressure containment vessel" limitation.

Applicant argues the apparatus disclosed in Kobylinski is not used for the same purpose as that of the instant application. The examiner agrees. Applicants are reminded that a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. In a claim drawn to a process of making, the intended use must result in a manipulative difference as compared to the prior art. See In re Casey, 370 F.2d 576, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 312 F.2d 937, 939, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963).

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a).

Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
